The program is both a great alternative to other photo viewer and organizer software and a practical, all-in-one image viewer with basic editing capabilities. In a major victory for longtime file-sharing campaigner Peter Sommer, a European Court of Justice ruling has upheld the appeal against a $1.8 million fine he was charged with for file-sharing. Peter Sommer was given a $1.8 million fine by a German court in 2005. The ruling from the European Court of Justice (ECJ) says the German court imposed the fine on Mr Sommer based on laws that were introduced after his offense. His appeal was successful, and the ECJ found that the laws were introduced after Mr Sommer's offense, therefore they were not applicable to him. Mr Sommer, who represented himself in the case, is now expected to return the $1.8 million fine to the German court. "It is a good result," Mr Sommer told the BBC. "We won on all points. We won on standing. We won on the facts. And we won on the law. "The law in Germany is a new law. The law is new. I was a law student in Germany. It was the first time I ever heard about any law. I had no idea." Mr Sommer argued that the German law infringed on his civil liberties by not giving
