Below are some tips to get you started on the path to saving time and money on tax prep. Update software As the calendar turns to the fourth quarter of 2017, it's time to think about filing your 2017 tax return. Preparation for this tax year is as important as it gets, and the longer you wait to prepare, the more likely it is that you will run into problems during the process. Fortunately, there are some simple steps you can take to make sure your 2017 return is ready in time. Update your software. This includes QuickBooks Self-Employed, Xero, and Bookkeeper. All of these programs can import information from your tax return into your account, so this step should be part of the preparation process. Calculate your out-of-pocket expenses and income This might seem like a no-brainer, but it is a good habit to get into. Many people wait until they have finished their tax preparation to calculate their out-of-pocket and expected income. This is a bad idea, especially during tax season. Take some time to sit down and calculate your out-of-pocket expenses for 2017, plus a reasonable estimate of what you think you might earn in 2018. Then, write those numbers down! Update your withholding You should also take some time to update your withholding. This is basically the number of tax dollars you will be paying in a given month (for example, $2,500 in taxes) minus your estimated out-of-pocket expenses for the month. Make sure you are withholding the correct number of dollars for your expected income
